

Singular and Plural Pronouns – matching noun with pronoun choices

Circle my errors and write the correction on the top. Use a 'wedge' to show your insert. I did the first one for you.

^
|

(We) ate three cantaloupe in one sitting. My tummies was set to burst. I called out to our dog and told them to push us off my chair, so I could lie flat. He refused. 'Why not?' I shouted at them. They are my pet. Help us out here!' I exclaimed, when he still wouldn't move.

My mums heard my yelling. She came marching into the kitchen. Her eye grew wide when they saw all the cantaloupe skins. I burped.

'That's rude,' she said. 'Say, excuse us.'

'I know how to spell cantaloupe. Davids can't spell cantaloupe, but I can,' we explained randomly.

'Are you hungry?' she asked, our finger wagging with annoyance at us.

'Sure. Why not?' we replied.

Singular and Plural Pronouns – matching noun with pronoun choices

Circle my errors and write the correction on the top. Use a 'wedge' to show your insert. I did the first one for you.

^
|

(We) ate three cantaloupe in one sitting. My tummies was set to burst. I called out to our dog and told them to push us off my chair, so I could lie flat. He refused. 'Why not?' I shouted at them. They are my pet. Help us out here!' I exclaimed, when he still wouldn't move.

My mums heard my yelling. She came marching into the kitchen. Her eye grew wide when they saw all the cantaloupe skins. I burped.

'That's rude,' she said. 'Say, excuse us.'

'I know how to spell cantaloupe. Davids can't spell cantaloupe, but I can,' we explained randomly.

'Are you hungry?' she asked, our finger wagging with annoyance at us.

'Sure. Why not?' we replied.